

LOS ANGELES RETREAT CENTER COMMUNITY VISITORS DESCRIBE WHY WE NEED A BREAK DURING THE PANDEMIC

Los Angeles (November 12, 2020) – The need for a “mental health break” during these trying times has never been greater. Under normal circumstances, people have used retreats or a “quiet vacation” as a special gift only taken when they have the time available.

The pandemic has changed that dynamic, and the strains of finances, workplace difficulties, and the economic malaise all adding to the physical implications of the virus. People need a break. The Los Angeles Retreat Center Community has been responding with a combination of online and onsite retreats, each offering the spiritual break so many are seeking.

The need is well defined by the World Health Organization in their recent report:

“Fear, worry, and stress are normal responses to perceived or real threats, and at times when we are faced with uncertainty or the unknown. So it is normal and understandable that people are experiencing fear in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Added to the fear of contracting the virus in a pandemic such as COVID-19 are the significant changes to our daily lives as our movements are restricted in support of efforts to contain and slow down the spread of the virus. Faced with new realities of working from home, temporary unemployment, home-schooling of children, and lack of physical contact with other family members, friends and colleagues, it is important that we look after our mental, as well as our physical, health.” Source: World Health Organization (Mental Health and Covid-19, October 2020)

The Los Angeles Retreat Center Community is responding by providing sanctuary and programs to support those looking for a break from the tension created by all of these factors. Our teams have repurposed many programs to respond to these needs of us living in the Los Angeles area.

Since the pandemic started here are some of the experiences of those visiting the five centers which are a part of the community.

“Very, very good! I could see hearts softening and found myself looking inward asking how I can better serve God. Loved the personal stories!”

“A wonderful retreat away from a busy life.”

“Holy Spirit provides a safe haven to continue on one's journey.”

“Thank you for this online retreat during this difficult time.”

“I came in scattered and tattered and left less than 48 hours later restored and grounded.”

“The retreat gave me a new perspective. God is doing something new in me!”

These are just a few experiences from recent online and onsite retreatants at the retreat centers in the community. The need to visit a safe and serene location to keep

The following are the current members of LARCC, offering a choice of locations, facilities, and programs to Los Angeles area residents that are convenient wherever they live and whatever their particular faith expression:
